Dunedin Campus

The University of Otago has an international reputation for its excellence as a teaching institution and for its leadership in many areas of pure and applied research.

Established in 1869, it is New Zealand's first university and has over 17,000 students enrolled, with more than 2,000 studying at postgraduate level. Its courses and graduates are recognised by employers and the wider community as being of the highest quality.

The city of Dunedin, where Otago's main campus is located, is a true university city where learning is a way of life. The campus is an attractive mix of classical and modern buildings, only a few minutes' walk from the heart of the city.
